The cross summons of the Bank is also dismissed. Admitting that the shares are to be deemed fully paid up, there is no reason why the Bank should not be on the list of contributors. As to cost, I hear in mind that Mr. Butt was one of the signatories of the memorandum of Association and that all the applications for shares by the public were in fact made to the Bank. For these reasons I think there should be no order except that the liquidators can take their own costs out of the assets, if any. In this respect I follow the precedent in the case of A. V. Hall & Co. where the facts in my opinion bear a very strong analogy to those under present consideration.

FATAL ROW IN THE HONGKONG HOTEL.

At the Police Court this morning, Mr. Hastings on the bench, Choo Seng-chai alias Chan Ki-ling, aged 17, bar-boy of the Hongkong Hotel, was charged with "unlawfully, wilfully and maliciously assaulting one Arthur William Jinks," of H.M.S. Tamar.

Inspector Baker, who appeared for the Police, asked his Worship's permission to amend the charge to one of manslaughter, the injured man having expired at the Civil Hospital at 7:30 o'clock this morning.

The charge was amended accordingly, and defendant pleaded "not guilty."

D. McDonald, P.S. 95, said that while on duty on Pedder's Wharf at 8:30 last night an Indian watchman employed by the Hongkong Hotel came to him and reported that something serious had happened in the lower bar of the establishment. He at once went to the bar and there saw a member of the Hongkong Hotel in a uniform, lying unconscious on the floor near the fireplace. There was a bruise on his forehead above the right eye. A European, who gave the name of T. Gilchrist and said he was third engineer on board the Canton river steamer Fathian, pointed to the defendant, who was behind the bar, and said "he is the man who did it." Witness then took defendant into custody and telephoned for an ambulance to remove the wounded man to the Government Civil Hospital.

At this juncture defendant, who declined to cross-examine witnesses, was removed to the remand cell and the further hearing of the case was, by request of the Police, adjourned until 11:30 a.m. on the 9th inst.

CORRESPONDENCE.

[We do not necessarily endorse the opinions expressed by Correspondents in this column.]

"WHERE ARE THE POLICE?"

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "HONGKONG TELEGRAPH." SIR.—Y. steady, between the hours of 10:45 a.m. and 12:30 p.m., piers-by, of an observant turn of mind, could not fail to notice the unusual number of Chinese-urchins assembled on Queen's Road between the Cricket and Parade Grounds. These urchins were busy disporting two trees (one on the borders of each ground) of their budding flowers or leaves—I'm not enough of a forester to know which by climbing up the trees, and breaking off small branches and twigs. From the Officers' Mess at Murray Barracks to the Club not a policeman was visible. To show how many these youngsters were, I may mention that they had scooped out at the corners of the Cricket Ground and City Hall, and the word of the coast all clear seemed to be frequently repeated.

Later on, in afternoon, in the vicinity of Caine Road West, I noticed other Chinese larkies in force, playing and taking full charge of this Road, and it might have fared badly with any European children had they been passing that way and been hustled by the dirty infantile scum of Tai-ping-shan. Again, "No police were visible." Were they, too, keeping the Grand Old Warrior's Birthday?

Your truly,
B. T. S. MARK.

A SENSATIONAL POLITICAL MURDER IN SHANGHAI.

A COREAN REFUGEE SHOT BY A FELLOW-COUNTRYMAN.

ESCAPE OF THE MURDERER.

Yesterday afternoon (March 28th) a few minutes before three o'clock, a murder, which from the positions of the parties concerned and the events which led up to it cannot be regarded as otherwise than highly sensational, was committed in a Japanese hotel, at the corner of North Borneo and North-Honan Roads. The murdered man is Kim-ok-Kiun, who on the 4th of December, 1893, commenced a rebellion against the Korean government, caused seven of the principal officers of State to be murdered, and on the collapse of the insure was only saved from execution by the Japanese refusing to surrender him when he had taken refuge with them. The murderer, who at the time of writing is at large, is Hong-Tyong-Ou, a fellow-countryman who had recently returned from Paris, where he had been in the best society, and had evidently made himself a familiar figure in the diplomatic, literary and artistic world. The story of the crime is short, and all the evidence at present available points to it being due to political vengeance. So far as Shanghai is concerned it opened on Tuesday afternoon, when the murdered man, his servant, Hong-Tyong-Ou, and Woo Po-ling, who is described as a linguist to the Chinese Legation, arrived by the Sakito Maru from Japan. They travelled under assumed names, and the murdered man being S. Iwata, they represented themselves as Japanese subjects, and kept aloof from their fellow-passengers. During yesterday, their identity came to our knowledge, and strangely enough our representative was endeavouring to discover why a man in Kim-ok-Kiun's circumstances—virtually a fugitive from Korea, and therefore Chinese law—should hazard putting his foot upon Chinese soil, when news of the tragedy was received. It is impossible to say what could have induced Kim-ok-Kiun to leave his safe refuge under the wings of Japan, especially when it is stated that he must have had some cognizance of the fact, which was a matter of common knowledge amongst Korean diplomatists, that assassins at the bidding of the King of Korea had been waiting for years for an opportunity to despatch the ex-king-killer.

Upon arriving in Shanghai, Kim-ok-Kiun, his Japanese servant who had been with him for several years, Hong-Tyong-Ou, and Woo Po-ling, went to stay at the Japanese Hotel where the murder occurred. It is not clear whether the murdered man gave Hong-Tyong-Ou a draft for 5,000 yen on the Tsin-fung Chinese bank, near the Small East Gate of the native city. Hong-ling for the ostensible reason of getting the draft cashed. In the course of some time he returned, saying he would have to go back later to get the money, as the bank manager was out, and he could not see him before five or six o'clock in the evening.

Woo Po-ling, as we know nothing more of what happened, but he is able to throw some light on the apparent reasons which induced the murdered man to come to Shanghai. He says that they had an invitation from Li Hsun-chang's son (recently Chinese Minister at Tokio) to come to Shanghai, and then start on a tour in China. The murdered man yielded to the advice of his acquaintances and decided to take the trip, with what result will be seen from what has already been written. After hearing about the failure to cash the draft, Woo Po-ling seems to have left the hotel at any rate says he knows nothing of the subsequent events. For what occurred afterwards then we have to rely upon the murdered man's Japanese servant, and according to his story the murder must have been carefully planned. Just before the murder Hong-Tyong-Ou sent him out of Kim-ok-Kiun's room on some small errand. There were then in the room only the murderer and his victim. So far as we can learn Hong-Tyong-Ou produced a revolver, and fired a shot at his victim, who was lying in bed, on his right side. The bullet entered at the top of the left cheek, and took an upward course. Another shot was then fired at the man's stomach as he turned over, the marks of which can be seen in the bed-clothing. Kim-ok-Kiun then got off the bed and rushed on to the door of a corridor. He was pursued by his assailant, who fired one more shot at him, which entered below the left shoulder blade, and then Kim-ok-Kiun fell, at the top of a small flight of stairs, where his dead body was found by the persons who were attracted to the spot by the firing. Just before the Japanese man near a Japanese house. Before the deceased was dressed in a waistcoat, white dress-shirt, trousers, stockings, but no coat or boots. Enquiring where the murderer had gone Inspector Reed learned that he had not been noticed leaving the place, but that a Korean had been seen running along North Shan Road, in the direction of Lopsa village, amongst the bamboo bushes. Subsequently he was seen near the Rifle Bunk, getting into a ricksha. Inspector Reed next proceeded to take possession of the murdered man's effects, which were not however very numerous. His card was found, which furnished the first clue to his identity.

There was the forged card of the Chinese Minister to Japan, and the card of the victim's companion. There was also found a small quantity of hair, presumed to be the deceased's "top-knot" which he had cut off on assuming European attire. If for any reason it is out of it is customary to preserve it and bury it with the person at his death.

Attention was next turned to the belongings of the murderer, and a cursory glance was enough to show that he was no ordinary criminal. He had a large quantity of foreign clothing, and the numerous letters and documents in his portmanteau indicated that he had left France in July last by the French mail steamer Medbourne, and travelled to Japan, where he fell in with his victim. There was nothing to throw any direct light upon the murder, but it was evident that Hong-Tyong-Ou had enjoyed considerable social popularity in Paris. He appears to have stayed at the Hotel Serpente, 11, Rue Serpente, Paris, and to have had many correspondents. From the well-known French hypocrite, Loysen, and his equally friendly, exceeding the warmest wishes for the recipient's welfare on his return to his native country. The Rev. gentleman in one letter said "warmest wishes for dear Corea, and prayed God to preserve your dear father, mother, and children," so apparently Hong is married. There was also a visiting card from Pere Hyacinthe saying: "Paris, 22nd July, 1893. My dear friend, I wish you a very happy voyage, and pray God to bless you and yours." All these letters were French, and there were besides some French books, inventories of a large quantity of goods sent from France at Hongkong, cigarettes, etc. There were several letters of introduction, including one to the French Consul in Hongkong, and another to M. Frandlin, Commissaire of the French Government to Corea, none of which had been presented.

It is stated that Hong knows Japanese and French, and perhaps English, but is ignorant of Chinese. Some of his letters amongst his correspondence had been sent to the care of the Korean Consulate at Tokio, all apparently coming from France.

Yesterday afternoon the Japanese representatives here held an enquiry into the death, but they did not take charge of the body. Inspector Reed has informed the Chinese officials, as the chikien may like to conduct an inquest. The murdered man's Japanese boy appears very desirous of taking the remains to Japan, after either embalming or cremating the body here.

Despite the greatest vigilance on the part of the police, at the time of writing the fugitive had not been arrested. Foreign and native detectives were out in all directions, the shipping, and every likely avenue of escape being closely watched. There is just the probability, however, that Hong has some friends who will be quite willing to do all in their power to aid his escape, now that he has executed vengeance on one whose death appears to have been so carefully compassed.—N. C. Daily News.

after Bismarck, and the Emperor has transmitted 500 marks to be devoted to a memorial tablet.

It is now known that when the rebel steamer Panau was sunk in the harbor here last week Captain Vacancellos, three other officers, and fifty of her crew were killed by the explosion of her magazine which sent her to the bottom. At least forty more of her men were wounded. The insurgents are considerably discouraged by this catastrophe, and their force, both of officers and men, is now much reduced. The latter are showing plain signs of discontent with the progress of the rebellion.

GENOA, February 27th.
There was a steam yacht race from Cape Martin to this place to-day, and it proved to be very exciting. The weather was fine and the sea perfectly calm. The yachts started from the Cape at 9:00 a.m. The Faustelle from Havre, and the Bazzano, owned by Prince Leuchtemberg, were second. James Gordon Bennett's Namouna sailed the Bazzano at 10:50 a.m., and closely pressed the Faustelle. The latter, however, crossed the line at the Genoa lighthouse at 2:22 p.m., and the Namouna at 2:27. The pace, therefore, was fifteen knots an hour. The Sebastopol yacht Foras crossed the line at 2:30, the Bazzano at 2:40, and the Bru, owned by Baron Arthur Rothschild, at 2:44.

The bout between Dan Creedon of Australia and Dick Moore of S. Paul ended in a draw. Two thousand people were present. In the sixth round Moore was knocked down and lay motionless for some time. The next four rounds were given and taken at and the end of the tenth round the fight was called a draw. Creedon had the best of the fight and was stronger than Moore at the finish. He was the more scientific and a harder hitter.

LONDON, March 5th.
At the annual meeting of the Council of the London Liberal Radical Union, James Stuart, member of Parliament, proposed a resolution regretting at the resignation of Gladstone and expressing confidence in Rosebery and Sir William Harcourt.

George Howell, member of Parliament, an advanced Liberal, in favour of home rule, seconded the resolution, but said that he did so with regret, because he thought Gladstone had been hounded out of political life (Oh's). Mr. Howell said it was useless to disguise matters but the supposition was that the old lady of Windsor had caused his retirement (Howes and Oh's), and some of his old colleagues had not been as strong as they might have been in keeping the grand old man at his post.

Another speaker declared that the Queen had influenced Gladstone to retire because she wanted Rosebery to be Premier before he married a princess, this being a reference to the rumor that Rosebery is about to marry a daughter of the Prince of Wales. More "Oh's" greeted this, and the resolution of Stuart was adopted.

The treaty between Spain and Morocco was signed yesterday.

LONDON, March 6th.
An action for breach of promise has been brought against Sir Francis Cook, who married Tennie Cliffin, a sister of Victoria Woodhull. The case will be heard by the Judge in the County Court in the morning, pending the arrival of a fleet of orders from the British Government. The Cleopatra sent three boats ashore with eighty marines and two pieces of artillery to protect Chief Cleopatra, who said his life had been threatened. The Nicaraguan forces offered no resistance.

He married Miss Cliffin nine years ago. Sir Francis is now 77 years of age. Sir Francis said he was too tired and unwell to talk, but Lady Cook and her secretary unfolded this tale. Twenty-five years ago Sir Francis met in a train, coming from London to Richmond, a handsome young woman who asked permission to call upon her, which was readily granted, and after each call he gave her money, usually £5 or £10. After a short time Sir Francis endeavored to drop her, but she continually bothered him for money. He therefore paid her £1 weekly. Sir Francis declares that he never promised to marry her and that he never entertained any idea of such a thing. After pursuing her evil way for several years she married a man named Holland.

FOOCHOW NOTES.

Foochow, March 17th, 1894.
A fortnight ago we quoted the price of gold leaf at $40 per two weight. It has since fallen 50 cents per two weight.

Dealers in sugar-cane have had a very bad time of it for some years past, but have been making large profits this season owing to a good demand from the Northern ports. The Min magistrato has posted a notice directing those of the poor who wish to partake of the bounty to be distributed by order of H.M. the Dowager-Empress on the occasion of her next birthday, to send in their names and addresses to the Min magistrato office within a fortnight.

A notice has been posted outside the building of a benevolent institution known as Yikengong, intimating that the number of children in the institution has lately become so great that they must part with some of the older ones; therefore respectable people in want of young servants would be accommodated. The charity is of the nature of the London Foydell Hospital—Echo.

TIENTSIN.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

Tientsin, 24th March, 1894.
The day before yesterday M. Lemaire, Minister for France, arrived from Peking, on his way home, and is staying at the Globe Hotel. He called upon Viceroy Li Hung-chang, who returned his visit at the French Consulate. M. A. Raffray, our French Consul, leaves at the end of this month for Cape Town, to which place he is appointed Consul. We had rain yesterday, which ceased about 3 p.m., leaving bright, clear weather; but about 3 o'clock this morning we had a heavy fall of hail and rain, accompanied by thunder and lightning, till about 4.20. To-day we have fine, clear weather, with a fresh breeze from the N.E. The Hasting and Hinyu came up to the Bund, the latter drawing 114 feet. The Hasting leaves to-morrow morning, via Chefoo, for your port. The Hinyu leaves for Shanghai, direct.—Shanghai Mercury.
